Grand Trunk Pacific.

On Friday, August 14th, during the Grand Trunk Pacific debate, Mr. Oliver spoke as follows:

Standard report, August 14:
Mr. FRANK OLIVER (Alberta). I believe that Canada's further national development and welfare demands a second transcontinental railway.

I believe that government ownership throughout of such a railway would be in the best interests of the country and people, both present and future. But as it has been shown that only one member of the cabinet, as it was, supported government ownership throughout, and as the feeling in parliament in its favor is confined to a few members on the Liberal side, to wait until belief in government ownership has grown sufficiently to ensure the building of a transcontinental railway as a government work, would mean leaving the western country without a competing outlet, either east or west, too long for the good of either west or east.

If we cannot get what we want, the next best thing is to get what we can, on the best terms we can.

That being the case, I support the present arrangement.

Because it doubles the industrial and productive area of Canada.

Because it doubles opportunity for every man in Canada.

Because it offers the shortest and best all Canadian line from tide water to tide water, summer and winter.

Because it is the only all-British railway across the continent under one management.

Because it is so situated as to be most secure from foreign invasion; giving depth, and, therefore, strength to our country, to the advantage of both Canada and the empire.

Because it gives development and competition in transportation to 1,300 miles of grain growing country in the west, as compared with 400 miles of such country developed by the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Because it develops vast coal fields on the Saskatchewan, Athabasca and Peace rivers, for the supply of fuel to the prairies.

Because it gives the most north-westerly part of the prairie region, which is furthest from the Atlantic, a short outlet to the Pacific.

Because it connects the railway system of Canada with 2,000 miles of steamboat navigation on the Athabasca, Peace, Laird, and Mackenzie rivers, their great lakes, and the Arctic ocean.

Because it develops mining and lumbering in northern British Columbia and provides facilities for profitable interchange of mutual necessities between the prairie and mountain regions of the far west.

Because it ensures a third railway outlet from and through the wheat fields to the lakes.

Because it develops a thousand miles of northern Ontario and Quebec, at present unknown and inaccessible.

Because it cuts nearly 200 miles off the present intercolonial distance between Quebec and Canada's nearest winter port, St. John.

Because by government ownership and control of rates, with modern competition, and adequate equipment, it provides an all-round outlet for western grain; and gives the merchants and manufacturers of eastern Canada profitable access to the markets of the great west.

Because it does this without land grant, tax exemption or provincial or local aid of any kind.

Because it induces the investment of one hundred millions of British capital in Canada, and correspondingly interests the British public in Canada's welfare.

Because co-operation with the Grand Trunk Company secures effective, satisfactory and business-like operations; ensures fulfillment of all engagements; provides business from the start, and secures the government from payment on its guarantee.

Because by that co-operation all principal points in eastern Canada are put in direct connection with the west without extra cost.

Because it transfers the through traffic interests of the Grand Trunk from the western states to western Canada.

Because it provides for over capitalization, for effective government control of rates, and secures running rights to other roads throughout its whole length.

Because an Atlantic outlet for the Canadian Northern, and extension of the intercolonial to the wheat fields is provided for without a cent of additional public cost.

Because it gives maximum public control for a minimum public outlay, and absolute security for the financial responsibility assumed.

Seven hundred young men and women left Halifax a few days ago over the Canadian Pacific railway to make new homes in the Northwest. They were all from Prince Edward Island. They are of the very best class. Another two hundred and seventy-five men left to work as harvesters.

A Short Talk About Clothing!

In Men's Clothing as well as all other lines of merchandise there are different grades and values. The clothing of twenty years ago cannot be compared with that which is made today, the style, finish and general make up is much better in every respect and prices are more moderate.

The ready-made suit of today is as highly finished as any Tailor can turn out and perhaps better.

But when we say higher we don't mean price. The clothing we handle is the best obtainable in the Canadian market.

We have seven different maker's goods in our stock, but when it comes to the finish and wearing qualities we recommend our "PICCADILLY" suits in every case.

Our Stout Men's Suits should be of interest to every man that is in the stout order.

AS OTHERS SEE US

A special correspondent of the Toronto Globe wrote to that paper last June as follows:—

Edmonton, June 22.—The gradual but steady shifting of the centre of the grain growing area of the continent towards the north and northwest, a change every year becoming more marked, is making good a certain old claim put forward by believers in the Edmonton district. The claim is that, so far from being the northern outpost of the agricultural and commercial interests of the west, it is really the gateway to a region of surpassing possibilities and natural wealth, reaching far beyond what even a few years ago were presumed to be the climatic limits of wheat production. Edmonton is some three hundred and fifty miles from the international boundary and has been for almost a century the chief trading post and town of the north country, but the trader and the settler have gone far past it. The district has ceased to look for support to the comparatively small territory below it, but now seeks its future as a great commercial centre to the fertile reaches of Athabasca and the richness of northern British Columbia and the Mackenzie district. The distance of three hundred and fifty miles from the northern point, is beginning to lose its significance in the consideration of the two thousand miles beyond and subsidiary to it. Judged from the main line of the Canadian Pacific railway, it is still to the north, but every new transcontinental railway company has Edmonton marked on its map, and these projected lines are more and more tracing the real centre of the country.

An Edmonton real estate agent has recently issued an advertising pamphlet upon which is depicted an outline map of the railways in Edmonton a few years from now. The Calgary & Edmonton branch of the Canadian Pacific railway is in this map extended up to the Athabasca Landing, on that up to the north; the Canadian Northern Railway approaches from the northeast and passes through the Jasper Pass and to the coast; the Grand Trunk Pacific line is drawn straight across the town and through the mountains to the west, the third line projected across the Saskatchewan Valley, joins the Calgary branch a few miles below Edmonton. Two lines are now in course of construction, the Canadian Northern and the Manitoba & Northwestern branch of the Canadian Pacific. There can be no doubt of the desire of both roads to reach Edmonton as quickly as possible, and the demand for surveyors and road builders in the projected lines has made them all scarce and expensive.

What the condition of the Edmonton district will be with even one railway cutting through it and opening up communication with a new ocean port can scarcely be estimated. The first railroad will find over forty thousand people already in the district and five hundred miles into Edmonton will be built through a settled country. On the strength of the hope in the ultimate development of the country, settlement has spread far east and west and north, villages and hamlets have been founded and have passed through their infancy miles away from the existing railway. They are prosperous in spite of the hampered communication with a market. A railway which will create new industries in northern British Columbia, which will reduce the distance to the Pacific port to five or six hundred miles and will open a new route to the markets of the east, will find this great district of Alberta ready to begin business with the first train that passes through. The preliminary development of Northern Alberta is completed.

The district which almost all the railways of the country are now striving to reach, required exceptional natural advantages to overcome the lack of transportation facilities and the years of neglect for which the railway companies are now endeavoring to make up. The country secured a comparatively large population in the early seventies when the Canadian Pacific railway was surveyed through the town of Edmonton. A boom followed the location of the line through the district, and the customary collapse came when the route by way of the Bow River was chosen. To be thus left off the line of railway for seven years tried the district thoroughly, and its growth in spite of obstacles has been perhaps the best proof of the worth of the country, which is only now being generally appreciated.

The condition which allowed and still permits farmers to succeed in a country considerably removed from a railway has been the possibility of securing from within the district itself all of the necessities of life. The lack of water and fuel in sufficient quantities which has hampered the progress of other districts is here unknown. In addition to being a well-wooded country, it is said that the Edmonton district has more good coal immediately available than any other coal area in the known world. The Saskatchewan River and its tributaries have cut a path through the seams and left the coal exposed for the farmer to dig out. Again at points the seams show themselves on the surface of the plains, and the coal is simply quarried. The quality is said to be somewhat better than the Smyth coal, but the inferior of that mined in Southern Alberta. It is nevertheless, excellent for domestic purposes, and the farmer who has pipe on his farm secures the fuel at $1 per ton at the pit mouth. Coal is found at frequent intervals from the mountains to eighty miles east of Edmonton, and in the mine of Messrs. Mays and Wylie, seven miles from the town, I saw a seam easily six feet thick which was being worked at a minimum of expense. This mine supplies to a great extent the needs of Edmonton, and the coal is sold at about $3 per ton, the haul by wagon adding considerably to the price at the pit mouth. Farmers mine the coal on their own properties industriously, and it is not an uncommon thing for a settler, before driving into town to secure supplies, to throw a ton of coal into the wagon with which to settle his hotel bill.

More than anything else the climate and the character of the soil of northern Alberta and Athabasca, which is capable of mixed farming in its widest sense, have permitted it to grow in spite of a sometimes limited market. The Edmonton farmer grows, besides oats, wheat and barley, roots and vegetables, and raises stock, and particularly hogs, for which there is a ready market on two sides of him. The fat cattle and butter go east to Great Britain, the bacon north to the Yukon and down the Mackenzie river to the Arctic ocean, and during the last winter several shipments of dressed hogs have been made to Australia by way of Vancouver. While the market in the Kootenay, which formerly absorbed large quantities of hog products from Northern Alberta, has been to some extent diminished, hogs are now quoted on the Edmonton market at seven cents per pound, and the three packing houses at Edmonton, Strathcona and Leduc are all short.

In these high latitudes of the eastern slope of the Rockies the chinook plays an important part and the warm wind, dried by the mountain ranges, has an even greater influence in the Peace River country than it has in the Saskatchewan valley. Just as the wind blowing off the Gulf Stream warms a portion of northern Europe where agriculture is pursued, so the chinook balances the effects of the high latitude and altitude of Athabasca. The climate fits well the cultivation of every grain, but the farmer of the Edmonton district is as strongly wedded to the cultivation of oats as his brother in Manitoba and Assiniboia is to wheat. The soil and climate are exceptionally suited to the most perfect growth of the oat plant. The absence of the danger from sudden changes of temperature which the wheat grower here incurs has made the farmer prefer oats that he can sell at from 25c to 26c to wheat which would bring him 50c to 55c. For several years past the Kootenay mines and the wheat contracts absorbed the surplus crop and this year the new market has been the incoming settler. To such an extent has the supply been depleted for seed purposes that oats have risen to 30c a bushel. The oat crop last year in the Edmonton district, which in the oat situation is considered to be the country on both sides of the railway as far south as Red Deer, amounted to some three million bushels, but is now in different sections of the country causing a heavy decrease in the aggregate yield. The average price for the season was about 24c a bushel, which, considering the heavy yield per acre, allowed a good profit to the farmer.

The production of the coarser grains and vegetables in northern Alberta is increasing so rapidly as to lead to the belief already expressed that these grains will have to find their ultimate export market in the shape of pork and beef. The reduction of the freight charges on his products when in this form represents the profit to the farmer. In a table prepared by Mr. F. Oliver, M.P., who has secured much valuable data concerning the district, it is shown that in the case of wheat the freight from Edmonton to Montreal is at least one-third of the value at destination; on live cattle the freight is from a fourth to a fifth of the final value, and on live hogs from a fifth to a tenth. As Mr. Oliver points out, the difference in price because of freight charges on live stock or cured meat between the eastern and western part of the wheat belt is so slight as not to be a matter for serious consideration when compared with the superior advantages of rearing in the west.

More and more, however, the natural products of Alberta are to find a market within a short distance of the territory. The combination of a rich mineral and timber region lying for hundreds of miles beside an agricultural and stock-raising country is not often found, and when the railways open the mineral territory of the northern mountains as they have done in the south, the Alberta farmer will have almost at his own door a better market for his pork, eggs, butter and poultry than if he were as close to a large eastern city.

With a steadily growing home market for all that he can produce, with the certainty of a railway connection with a Pacific port five or six hundred miles away, with the grain and stock of all Athabasca and eastern Saskatchewan ready to go through to the west, and with the prospect of the Orient's markets opening up to him, it is any wonder that the Alberta farmer is a happy and contented man?
